A copy should be provided to the school for each child.

The parties need to understand that the school is not a party to the case and cannot be ordered to comply with orders of this Court. Accordingly, it shall be the duty of the custodial parent to provide to the non-custodial parent adequate notice of all school activities. The custodial parent shall also provide to the non-custodial parent access to all lesson plans, class dojo and progress book accounts or any other similar type applications used for communicating with the child(ren)'s teachers and for tracking the behavior and the grades of the child(ren) and any or all other information available to the custodial parent but

The custodial parent shall not assume that the school has or will provide any records or information to the non-custodial parent. The duty to provide that information rests solely upon the custodial parent, even if the records or information is available from another source.

Both parents shall have access to babysitting, day care, nursery school, and/or latchkey records of the child(ren). Both parents shall be entitled to communicate with all physical care providers for the child(ren). Either shall execute any authorizations or releases necessary to release the records to the other.

XIV. WAITING TIME: If either parent is more than thirty (30) minutes late arriving to pick up the child(ren), or if either parent is more than thirty (30) minutes late in having the child(ren) available to the other parent, as outlined in this visitation, then that parent forfeits their following scheduled weekend with the child(ren).

XV. TRANSPORTATION: It is the responsibility of the non-custodial parent to pick up the child(ren) for the scheduled weekend visitation. It is the responsibility of the custodial parent to pick up the child(ren) after such scheduled visitation. This provision may be modified by agreement of the parties. If the parties live more than thirty-five (35) miles apart, responsibility for transportation (including costs), should be decided in advance and a plan written into the court's specific decree.

The non-custodial parent shall be responsible for the transportation to and from any weekday, holiday or birthday visitation. The Court again references provision (XIV) regarding waiting time.

XVI. CURRENT ADDRESS AND TELPHONE NUMBER: Each parent shall keep the other informed of his or her current address and telephone number at all times.
