

Bonnie Tucker

Bonnie Tucker is a Public Health Consultant for the New Hampshire Community Health Institute/JSI where she is working on addressing the critical healthcare workforce gaps in New Hampshire as part of a new initiative called HealthForce NH. As part of this work, it became very clear to her that a key barrier for being able to fill healthcare positions in New Hampshire is the scarcity of affordable housing. As a result, she decided to join the Affordable Housing Subcommittee for the Town of Peterborough to help solve the affordable housing problem. Prior to joining the New Hampshire Community Health Institute/JSI, Bonnie led the development and introduction of biotechnology therapies globally to treat bone and inflammation diseases for over 20 years. She has an MA in Biology, an MBA, MPH, and is currently working on a doctoral degree in public health. She resides in West Peterborough and enjoys the abundant beauty, cultural richness, and civic pride of Peterborough.
