Executive Session
Commissioner Wannemacher: Just one quick question please, does the home sit on a single buildable lot or is it on…
Kelly Perkins: The home is on two buildable lots.
Commissioner Wannemacher: Okay,
Kelly Perkins: Part of that carport addition that was added in the sixties (‘60’s) is extended onto that third lot. Staff does feel that, that lot being undeveloped, mostly undeveloped, is important to the building significance because that was part of the idea of the house, that it is set in the center and you have large landscaping program and a service yard.

Commissioner Wannemacher: Okay, this brings up a follow up question, what if the homeowner at some point wants to parcel off that third or second buildable lot and build a separate home on that? This has come up before, and I just want to make sure we all understand what the implications are because you did identify the entire lot as being historic. 1:33:52

Kelly Perkins: I understand your question and actually I think, I would like to ask that to legal because I think that is a concern on Staff that we do find that undeveloped lot part of the significance of the property, partially undeveloped.

Attorney Dema: That is part of the question, you do find that to be part of the historical significance?

Kelly Perkins: Yes.

Attorney Dema: Okay, in the past, in limited circumstances, I can think of at least one Cade Allen House where we specifically drew the boundary of the historic designation of the landmark, like the four corners of the structure. There was a possibility there to parse off the remainder of the property. In this case we are making a finding that, or Staff is making the finding that the entirety of the property contributes to the historical significance of the landmark. In that case parsing that off and doing new construction would require another COA.

Commissioner Wannemacher: So, it does not prohibit that the homeowner from building on that buildable lot?

Kelly Perkins: Oh no.

Commissioner Wannemacher: It would just require a COA.

Kelly Perkins: Yes, yes, sorry.

Commissioner Wannemacher: Yes, I knew that I just wanted to make sure that was stated and in the record.

Commissioner Gerdes: Thank you. Commissioner Rogo…

Commissioner Rogo: Thank you Mr. Chairman, I am in support of the proposal from Staff, I think that this is an excellent building and thank you to Derek, I have learned the term depth variation and this building shows that as well. The windows, the windows appear in some of the photographs seem tinted and maybe reflective. Does that in anyway detract from the historic integrity of the structure?

Kelly Perkins: I do not believe so, are you thinking of the large picture window, in the front of the house?
Commissioner Rogo: Mmhmm.

Kelly Perkins: It might have tinting applied on the interior, I would not, that is something that we normally review too much. Some of the glass around the house has been replaced with a textured glass, I think that was for privacy, but none of those were on the front elevation. Only the picture window that had a little…

Commissioner Rogo: Typically, our concern then would be the framing, the muntins, those sort of things as opposed to the type of glass that is being used.

Kelly Perkins: If someone came forward with a proposal to really change, so strongly that type of glass, we would probably recommend against it. Normally for window replacements they need to meet the energy efficiency levels anyway which tends to put in a little bit of a tint. It wouldn’t be, I think, out of the norm.

Commissioner Rogo: Thank you.

Commissioner Winters: Yes, I do not know the ownership history on this house, but it is quite remarkable how intact it is, both in the exterior and the interior. I was personally kind of wowed by the windowsills that are still the tile and of course the tiled bathrooms. It sounds like the applicant stepped forward; this is not any kind of historic part of town. They took the initiative themselves and I just have to say I am so pleased that people are doing that and stepping forward. Individual property owners who acknowledge and recognize the value of what they have and what an asset it is for the City, so, many thanks go to the property owners for doing this work and obviously ready to rehab it and keep it intact. I will move that we approve adding to the register.

Commissioner Whiteman: Second.

Commissioner Gerdes: We have a second, any comments before we vote?

Commissioner Michaels: Just to compliment the Staff on the history that was included in the Staff Report here. Really excellent and well done.
