COST BASIS

1. Permit fees are based on the reasonable cost of the improvement. Estimated cost shall include all cost of labor and material given at fair market value. In absence of a bona fide contract establishing the estimated costs, the value of the construction shall be established by the Code Enforcement Officer based on the area and type of construction.
2. If a portion of the contract is considered maintenance and a portion requires a permit, you must obtain a permit for the total amount.
3. Example: If you are installing new windows in your home and no structural changes are made, no permit is required. If you change the size of any windows requiring additional framing, the permit must be for both the windows and framing.
