

Maintenance Report for Period 7/10/23 – 8/8/23

Another busy month in maintenance, The band stand/ stage is all most complete we put a lot of time into getting it completed this past month a few loose ends to tie up and it will be ready for its first voyage. Weve been talking to some small contractors about the bathrooms at the legion park but so far, I haven't gotten anyone to give us a bid out of 6 contractors I've gotten 2 that may be interested just waiting to meet. I wanted to try this way before we jump in and piece it out to different contractors. I'll do my best keeping everyone updated on the progress.

Last week the water line that feeds shelter one started leaking the guys went and started digging the line up and came across the power line feeding the shelter buried in the same ditch about 8" above the waterline some careful digging and hand work by the staff keep this from becoming a serious problem. I'm really unsure who thought running both the power and water in the same ditch was a good idea. I'm guessing someone tried to save time and money instead of using common sense. I will send out some pictures later to show you what I'm talking about. Now onto the rest of the work.

Yesterday we spent most of the day prepping for the storm that never showed that includes running all generators stationary and portable preparing saws fueling vehicles equipment and starting up the spring to fill water tanks. We do take forecast for straight line winds and tornados just as serious as snow storm forecast just want to be prepared if the forecasters do get it correct.
